

The companies which built the Internet should not be wiped away and replaced by the large telephone monopolies.

This proposed rule change will benefit large and powerful corporations to the detriment of individual consumers and smaller, local ISP's like the one I use, sonic.net.

These small ISP's make their living supplying excellent service, great tech support and in the case of sonic, are great people.

None of these things can be said of the service supplied by the local phone monster, SBC. Their service is poor to mediocre, tech support is, on a good day, indifferent, and they seem to be run by drones and bureaucrats who put in their time and march in place until they get to go home.

Please, please protect us from the greed-heads and oligopolists at Bell South and SBC.
